Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) Cell

Introduction:

Intellectual Property Rights cell has been established to ensure creativity and protects unfair use of creativity by others. This cell will motivate researchers, students, faculties to use copyrights, patents and authorship. IPR maintains integrity of the research, moral and ethical responsibility. IPR is important to provide security, inspiration and incentives for enhanced and sustained innovation.

Objectives:

- i) To establish academic privilege and understanding intellectual property rights towards research.
- ii) To provide a single point of coordination for all intellectual property rights related issues, generated at Institute level.
- iii) To establish best IP management practices to promote and handle IPR within the institute
- iv) To prevent and provide legal support to the researcher to protect their intellectual property, against any unauthorized use.
- v) Organize seminar and workshops on intellectual property law for researchers, students, and faculties to create awareness among them about their rights and responsibility.

With above objectives, the Marathwada Institute of Technology CIDCO has established Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) Cell to promote, awareness, and emphasize the importance of IP rights.
